AgHires' Lori Culler To Present At The International Production And Processing Expo

Lambertville, MI – AgHires, a leading recruitment firm specializing in the agriculture and food production sectors, announced today that its Founder and Owner, Lori Culler, will be a featured speaker at the International Production and Processing Expo in Atlanta, Georgia.

Culler's presentation, Navigating and Hiring in Today's Candidate Market, is scheduled for 4 pm on Tuesday, January 30th, in B Hall, Booth B48027. Attendees will gain insightful strategies and practical tips to enhance hiring success in today's tight labor market.

"We're excited to share our approach to help employers with their recruitment process, especially in an industry as crucial as agriculture and food production," said Culler. "Given the challenges that many companies face in this area, we're pleased to be able to offer some guidance, strategies, and solutions in this tough job market."

In addition to her presentation, Culler, along with other AgHires team members, will maintain a booth at the expo from January 30 to February 1, 2024. Representatives from the company will be stationed at Booth B36054 in Hall B to share insights on today's tight labor market and success stories on how AgHires is helping companies find great talent.

"Stop by and let's discuss your hiring challenges to see if we can partner to solve your problem," AgHires CRO, Ryan Young, added. "Our expert team is excited to provide tailored advice to company representatives interested in discovering new strategies for navigating the tough labor marketplace."

AgHires offers Job Postings and Advertising, Full-Service Professional Recruiting, Executive Recruiting, as well as other customized services to help companies find and attract industry-leading talent.
